What Do You Think of Our New Web Site?

We hope you have explored the new format of REA:APPRRE's web site. Not only are the pages for the 2011 meeting full of important information and exciting previews of our program, but there are several new features that you'll want to take advantage of. NOTE! The website is now open access--meaning that you do NOT need a password to login. The site is open and anyone can access anything on the site, including all of the material that existed on the former website. Membership information is still limited to name and email address.

Each Task Force Has Its Own Website Space

Each of the REA:APPRRE Task Forces has their own space on the new website to share information about their upcoming meeting in Toronto, collaborate on projects, add resources, discuss pertinent world events--however you choose to structure your space. Task Force Coordinators, let me know if you need information to help you contact people in your group. For a list of the current Task Forces and how to participate or create a new one, click here.

We Want Your Book in Our Bookstore!

The Bookstore that was started for the 2010 Annual Meeting is now a permanent fixture under the Resources tab on REA:APPRRE's web site. Here's how it works: As an Amazon Associate, REA:APPRRE chooses what items to include in our store, and we receive 15% of sales that are made through our web site. You can be sure your own titles are included in the Bookstore by sending the information to Sybrina Atwaters, Network Coordinator.

New Travel Award Policy

A new Graduate Student Travel Award Program, approved by the Board of Directors at its March 2011 meeting, pays up to $400 toward travel and registration ($500 for international travel) for the Annual Meeting for students who are presenting a paper. Be sure to check it out as you plan for Toronto.

Let me know if you have questions or suggestions. I'd love to hear from you!
