

Religious Education as a field and the Religious Education Association as an organization with 110 years of history have at our core a responsive instinct to current, exigent issues inscribed in/by the intersections of religion and education.

Religious education scholars have endeavored to give expression and form to new in(ter)ventions between religion and education for the flourishing of the global community and planetary life.

Mindful attention to issues of everyday religious lives, the organizing theme of our 2014 meeting forges a conceptual problem out of a practical concern for what we have been witnessing in local and global current events: the problem of violence and the function of cultural and religious imagination in its making and unmaking.

7-9 November
Doubletree Hotel
Chicago - Oak Brook
Oak Brook, Illinois

REA Annual Meeting 2014

religion and education

local on-site registration available
just $50 per day (excludes meals)

<http://religiouseducation.net/rea2014>
The Religious Education Association (REA) is an Association of Professors, Practitioners, and Researchers in Religious Education

