

What does becoming a good ancestor mean for religious education, for our communities, or for the world? If our work is to matter for the future, we must go courageously together. In order to broaden the imagination of our collective voices, first we must know a few things about ourselves. Who is religious education for? Why does religious education exist? What is the nature of our work? How do we gather? How do we share knowledge?

5-8 July
University of St. Thomas
Saint Paul, Minnesota

REA Annual Meeting 2022 becoming good ancestors

Courageously Co-Creating

religionseducation.net/rea2022

The Religious Education Association (REA) is an Association of Professors, Practitioners, and Researchers in Religious Education